

ADVICE

THE VIRTUAL HIRING PROCESS:

Whether you are hiring manager or a candidate it would have been very unusual for an interview process to be entirely remote. In light of recent events, this has changed... Welcome to the new norm!

- Ensure you allow time to warm into the conversation and build rapport. In the past this would have taken place walking from the reception to a meeting room and back to the lift. People buy into people so don't underestimate the importance of personal connection.
- A factory walkthrough doesn't need to be done in person, use an online platform such as FaceTime and slowly walk through the plant so the candidate can visualize themselves working there.
- Take references! Past performance is a much better indicator of how successful someone will be than if they ace or fail an interview.
- Where relevant to the role set a task or ask for a sample piece of work.
- Towards the end of the process arrange a group interview so the candidate can meet with the team and vice versa, this is a great way to see how they will fit in with an established team and for them to get a better feel for the culture.
- Discuss how a virtual on-boarding will be implemented to ensure expectations are managed on both sides.
- Consider whether it is possible to hire an expat or someone currently overseas. If the borders are shut for the next few months, can they start remotely? Is the government approving visas? Best to research thoroughly first
- Consider the impact of e-resignations. This will make some people uneasy so work with your recruiter to support the candidate and agree a reasonable timeline.
- Be patient and empathetic. These are uncertain times and moving careers may be viewed more than ever by candidates as 'risky'. As a result they may require more support than normal throughout the process

VIDEO INTERVIEW OR CONFERENCE TIPS:

- If you are using a technology format with a user name or photo, ensure they are business appropriate.
- Ensure you are in a quiet room with your device connected to power and stable internet.
- Keep the background neutral, ideally set up in front of a plain wall so there are no distractions, and ensure pets or family members aren't able to enter the room.
- Ensure lighting (such as a window or lamp) is in front of you, rather than behind, so your face is clear and lit up.
- Dress professionally and avoid bright colours or patterns.

- Use a PC with camera or a laptop if possible. If you have to use a phone or tablet don't hold it in your hand, fix it on a stand or ensure it is securely propped up.
- If a link is provided, test and download the application at least 15 minutes before the start time.
- Close any unnecessary internet pages or applications as they can slow your connection speed, also ensure your phone is on silent.
- Set the camera on your device at head height or slightly above (e.g. put your laptop on a box or pile of books). This will encourage you to sit up straight and give the impression you are sitting in front of your audience
- Use headphones rather than the speaker from the device to ensure it doesn't pick up other noises in the room. Be mindful of shuffling papers or tapping your foot/pen etc.
- Have a glass of water and pen/paper to write questions next to you.
- Look straight into the camera from time to time, especially if you are trying to get a point across, as this will appear as if you are looking into their eyes.
- Finally, smile and use hand gestures as you would if you were in person.
